Impressed with what he saw on his maiden voyage to the North American Continent, French Explorer Jacques Cartier ventured further down the St. Lawrence River to present day Quebec City and Montreal known as Stadacona and Hochlegda respectively by the Iroquois.

Intrigued by the natural beauty of what is now known as Province of Quebec, Samuel de Champlain forged the foundation of a permanent settlement in Quebec City in 1608. Over 400 years later, the legacy of the Fathers of Quebec remains as a unique and vibrant French Speaking society surrounded by English Canada and the United States.

Although the French colony was lost to the British in 1763, Quebec emerged as an important partner in the establishment of an independent Canada and remains a significant part of our multi-cultural country.

We invite your group to join us in 2025 to explore Quebec just like Jacques Cartier did and discover remnants of a bygone era. Unscathed by time, Quebec remains a European jewel ready for your group to explore. Influenced by both French and British settlers, Montreal is one of the most bilingual cities in Canada where two cultures meet.

Next, we continue onto Quebec City, the only walled city remaining in North America. Cobblestone Streets, French-inspired architecture and outdoor cafes make Quebec, North America's most European City. A trip to nearby Ste Anne de Beaupre with its famous basilica and other impressive attractions is included in our sample package.

We have chosen hotels that are located in the heart of both cities.

You may also choose to substitute Ste Anne for the nearby Island of Orleans, where you will see relics of our colonial past, views of the majestic St. Lawrence River and taste our heritage through wine and French-inspired cuisine.
